About.

Welcome to AME. Thanks for checking us out and seeing what we're about. My name is Austin Michael and I'm the founder of AME. You're likely here for website branding and design which we'll dive into, but I also welcome you to check out my personal website (www.austinmichael.actor) to learn more about me and my artistic journey. I'm a creative and a storyteller. I started AME to lay groundwork for endeavors beyond my own individual sphere. A place within which various creative, visual, story-driven projects can thrive. A place where other artists and entities can collaborate and share what we do and love. This is the beginning of something new.

AME's first venture is Branding | Design. This is a world of storytelling at its finest. As a young performer, I had a need for my first website in the mid-2000s. I started by building my own actor website on Apple's consumer-level software iWeb. (Old school, right?) I have continued to rethink my website through the years and update the tools I use to keep up with the times. I had more and more people approach me about personal websites, how I built my own, and where they can get one too. All of a sudden I had built multiple websites for other people. I've collaborated with individuals, supported original projects, and helped depict the online storefront for small businesses. There's an expectation for web presence. It's assumed now. Websites are the new business card.

AME is taking web design and making it: Sleek. Versatile. Mobile. Affordable. Personal. Whether you'd like something that represents yourself and what you do, have a project you'd like to promote, or have a small business or company you need an online presence for, AME can deliver. We're not trying to charge several thousand dollars for a super extravagant website. As someone who is personally invested in designing and building clean, modern websites, I simply aim to make the subject look the best and the story be told the clearest. Thank you for considering collaborating with AME.
